The Genetic Experiment on Earth

Zoosh and Joopah

New York City, October 1987

All right. I [Zoosh] will be the master of ceremonies tonight of your time, and I will at some point introduce Joopah, who will tell you a little bit about himself. It is important tonight that you begin to understand that the reason for your survival on this planet may have less to do with the comforts than the discomforts. Recognize that you human beings as a species did not naturally evolve here. You were seeded here, not specifically as you look now, but very much like it. Most of the different so-called races were seeded from different corners of the universe, but this was accomplished in a relatively short span of time.

Many years ago — and really beyond the measurement of years into what could simply be called dimensions ago — there was a need by the universe for a place where ideas that had not moved elsewhere could be experimented upon. Thus it would be necessary to have a planet that would be capable of instant manifestation — so instantaneous, in fact, that manifesting would not have to be a conscious act. In that way the structural, social and biological engineers who manipulate environments were called upon to this little corner of the galaxy you now occupy.

The First Terra

There was at that time another planet that you would recognize from a distance as being different from this one, occupying this space that you now occupy on your planet Earth. The atmosphere and the continental distribution on the planet were a little different; the color would be green rather than the predominant blue you know now. The continents would appear at a distance as a little more golden in color rather than the darker shades one sees from space when approaching Earth. That planet we can for our convenience refer to as Terra. It existed then at a slightly higher or quicker dimension. Dimension in this case refers to a place rather than a state of advancement, so when I say higher I don't mean better; I mean a place that was a little different. But that space is the same space Earth now occupies.

However, Earth as you know it did not then exist, even though in this dimension there were the makings of a planetary body (bodies exist as needed in other dimensions). However, your ancestors were in a higher dimension, and Earth did not exist to them. So it was pondered what to do about the situation — whether to keep the planet Terra as an instantly manifesting planet where all could be created, given the biological and sociological soup that might be tossed in, or whether to create a planet at a slower vibration. It was considered at length, and it was decided that Terra, at its vibration, would not be slow enough for those individuals manifesting themselves on the planet that would come to be called Earth, and that they would not be able to understand their lessons and their experiences because of their slower, denser vibration as a resource planet for the fifth dimension. So it was considered that this slower third-dimensional vibration would be used to manifest Earth.

Working with the Light, the God Structure, the One — whatever you wish to call it — was then a manifestation of Earth, what you might call a photocopy of Terra at a slower vibration. Terra really is a planet that is slightly different in composition. If you were to experience it in this dimension, it is something you could not get your hands on, something you could not really touch, because the spaces between the molecules are farther apart and the motion of the molecules so fast that you would not really be able, in your dimension, to grasp it. So it was necessary to have something a little slower, a little more solid.

As a result, what was created through the manipulation of biogenetic energies was the planet you now reside on. Though it looked a little different at that time, it was essentially the same in the shape of its continents; and its atmosphere was something perceived from a distance as blue. It was also necessary to have it be a very active planet that could be perceived from a different dimension as unstable. (It is not really unstable; it just had to be alive as you understand life, wherein birth and death and change were so commonplace that that type of event would not be considered unusual.) Earth and those who would live upon it would be beings that would have a given span of life and would have eruptions from the physical bodies of themselves as well as eruptions from the Earth. There would be a form of mirror image so that the beings who occupied the planet would be able to feel that they had a direct heritage of this planet.

These social engineers, working with a species closer to Terra who could also transfer their energies to Earth, began to create what you now know as the human being. These Terrans are beings who now live beneath the Earth but not below the crust. As many of you know, there are beings and whole civilizations living inside this planet at higher dimensions, but I do not refer to these at this time. I refer rather to what you might refer to scientifically as the missing link, and in this case I am not referring to the so-called Abominable Snowman, Yeti and all these other names. I am referring to a being and a race of beings that combines both sexes, can reproduce itself and is quite tall and somewhat hairy (not as hairy as the big guys that roam around on the surface from time to time, though they be shy).

Thus, what occurred was an evolution, a change. The creation of an Earth hybrid race was needed. The Terrans transferred their bodies to this slower dimension and became denser, and it was perceived that their bodies were very strong, powerful, durable and could withstand a great deal of onslaught. It was considered necessary to have a race of beings populate this planet for whom danger would be a threat. (I know this is controversial, but I am nothing if not controversial.) The beings who came here on the ship — their number, naturally, 144,000 — would actually integrate their soul consciousness, their ego structure and their desires into this planet, and would recreate themselves through the natural physical acts and through genetic stimulation and social engineering. They would become an Earth race, human beings in different variations to test which types are more durable and to provide certain variations in certain geographic areas — all part of the experiment. A hybridized Earth race would be thus created. You are that result, but not of a casual creation. They didn't drop you off and say, "Well, have fun, see you later." It has been a very gradual experiment.

Now, I want to bring out the fact that this all evolved from the Terran influence of those beings who were genetically volunteering unconsciously and even consciously (since the Terran beings who manifested here were in total telepathic touch with themselves, their race and the universe, for that matter. I want to point out that the 144,000 as well as the Terrans volunteered. Thus no soul that ever incarnates on this planet now, in the past or in the future can trace its roots back to anything other than that 144,000. You may say, "But,

Zoosh, there's a lot more than 144,000 people on this planet." I would reply, "That's fine. But for every tree that you see there are many branches, many leaves and many seedlings. So you can look at the 144,000 as being the tree trunks, the tap roots, if you would; and the branches would be branches of the soul-trees that expanded in order to create as many variations as possible within the human beings developed on this planet.

Curiosity and Struggle

It was perceived by the universe that the problem in the universe was that there was not sufficient curiosity, not sufficient desire within the various planetary races to explore other planets, to connect with other races, and to find what worked on an intercultural level. So it was believed necessary to create a race of human beings that would be both curious and fragile.

Looking around at the animal kingdom, one is reminded of their natural defense systems. Some of them are downright durable; they have shells to hide in, and so on. You may say to yourself, "Well, seems like I'm pretty thin-skinned. I have to worry about the cold. I have to worry about the heat. I have to worry about lots of little built-in natural dangers, to say nothing of those created by the societies we live in." And I will say, "That's all part of the design." In order to create a race of beings that would have an entire race consciousness directed toward survivability in harsh conditions and a desire to explore nature, to be curious, to always want to go beyond to see what could be done, it was necessary to create a series of conditions that would bring out the best in a race of people to force those characteristics.

Very often even now an individual will be born with or develop a condition that will force him or her to bring out other skills. How often have you heard about blind people having very acute hearing? If some- one has an experience and they go blind within a lifetime, they will not immediately have acute hearing, but they might (and frequently do) develop it. This is an example of struggle bringing out the finest. The winemaker will often tell you that the vine that must struggle for an existence will make the best wine. You will find analogies over and over of such a creation. You may say to me, "But Zoosh, why would souls want to go through this thing? If this has in fact happened, why are we here now when we know that the planet is going through this gradual change to a higher dimension? Why would we want to be here and still be struggling?"

I would say to you that in the original concept of this planet, it was not perceived necessary to make conditions so harsh that survivability would be a matter of life and death on a moment-to-moment basis beyond the initial experience of real difficulty (a basic survivability in extreme situations, with no tools to speak of). It was perceived that the challenge of living here would have certain built-in limits.

It was not taken into account, as any good mathematician can tell you, that the factors of increase of conditions or energies would have everything to do with the increased population and that fragmentation of souls through the soul tree would tend to intensify it. So as the populations of any one area or all areas became larger and more condensed, there was necessarily more of a fight for survival, and as a result a little bit too much of so-called negative energy.

So the human being as a race — and you are all, believe it or not, volunteers on the soul level — has been purposefully created in an environment in which struggle is built in so that you could bring out the best in yourselves. Now, I am not advocating this; I am not suggesting that you make your life tougher. I am not suggesting that you begin an exercise program that aims itself toward pain so that you can have gain. What I am saying is that the reason things have gone along as they have in the past, with major conflicts and so on, is so that the qualities that the human being as a race consciousness would have at this given inter- section (that began with the Harmonic Convergence, the motion of your planet toward its higher dimensional identity) would be the strongest and the most valuable and would be distilled like a highly prized wine into the race consciousness of the human being.

Thus you are all curious; you have basic survival instincts; and the bottom line is that you want to know whether you will pursue these interests, such as you here in this room or a scientist in a laboratory who looks at microbes and tries to get the greatest magnification for examination. This planet is about scrutiny. It is about experiencing things at a very slow rate so that every aspect can be scrutinized and the most gotten out of it as a result.

Understand that many cultures on other planets have gotten to the point where they are involved primarily in establishing and perfecting (according to their own arbitrary set of standards) some form of technological, cultural, spiritual, emotional or physical expression of their consciousness — the “race consciousness,” we would say.

On this planet there is not so much of that. There might be that on a fragmented level, when you get caught up in your nationalistic and so-called racial causes. But you are all of one race, and the reason you look a little different is to create different degrees of adaptability for different conditions, almost like a gene pool of curious survivors. So it is the race consciousness of the human being that will necessarily force you to find the answer. This is on purpose.

Earth: Planet of the Seekers

You have really become the seekers, and this planet is known throughout the universe as the Planet of Seekers. It is well known. It was intended that you go to the stars, that you bring with you primarily the energy of curiosity, so that other cultures on other planets would eventually experience and understand the value of curiosity on more than an intellectual level — on an emotional level, in fact. So while you have a concern about pollution and going to other planets and polluting it with so-called debris and negative reality, in fact these conditions are really necessary to bring out some of your traits.

Now, the universe protects itself a little bit. There has not been the mass colonization of your solar system by cultures on this planet. There has been a little bit — outposts — on the Moon, a little bit on Mars, but not much else. Nothing that would make a big difference, no real intracultural exchanges going on on a mass level that would affect the evolutionary change or attitudes of the person in the street. Only a few individuals really know about those outposts, so there is not really a change in mass consciousness as a result.

However, there is a change happening, an alteration of vibration and frequency toward the so-called fourth dimension which will necessarily mean that what is beneath the surface — the subconscious mind — must be purged. Certain elements of your consciousness cannot really be brought into the higher-dimensional versions of yourself that you will experience at your so-called fourth dimension. This way you can expand your mind without having to discipline it. You will be able to move your subconscious into your conscious mind and experience an expanded power of the usage of your mind. You will learn that emotions are your friends, whether they appear as negative or positive in your judgment. Because of the race consciousness of Earth — meaning your desire to perfect something, anything — there is necessarily a need to experience a total expression of self. So recognize that this is not only implied in your creation, but necessary.

I give you this overview so that you will really begin to see that what Joopah says later has a very specific origin. Joopah will not go back as far as I have to explain the overview. I give you the overview on an intellectual level so that you can see why what was done had to be done, primarily to alter the future. The result of not having emotionality on some planets as you express it even in its extremes; and not having physicality as you express it even in its extremes; and mentality and even spirituality, has created on more than one planet and more than one culture a structure that turns in on itself and does not really perpetuate itself beyond its own arbitrary goals of perfection, as they call it. They reach a stagnant position and do not know where to go after that; thus the race consciousness of that planet has no real world to live at their dimension anymore.

Whole races and cultures have been lost from the universe — of course, nothing is ever lost, but they have been lost for a time — because of a lack of understanding of the value of things that on the surface might appear to be uncomfortable, disquieting, negative, whatever you wish to call it. It has been necessary then to create a planet on which there was a mixture of positivity and negativity so that the so-called negativity could accentuate the positive and the so-called positivity could influence the negative — a blending, as it were, of so-called polarities.

Joopah will discuss this from his own perspective (as one of your future selves) because the 144,000 eventually wound up condensing themselves, in large part, in the region that Joopah occupies in the star system you refer to as Zeta Reticuli. This future version of a race-consciousness human being will explain in detail what they have done and why they have interacted with you as they have. Why you seem to be used at their will, why they come down and pick you up just like you were a hot dog, take you in, seem to pour mustard and ketchup on you, put you over the broiler and zip you back out as though you were some thing rather than some person. They will explain that. There is good reason for it, if not an excuse. These people are really your future selves and they did not understand mentally the idea of emotion, though they are beginning to learn it. Any questions so far on what I have said?

Is there an intergalactic confederation that is watching the Zetas as they interact with us, or can they just come and go as they please?

Understand that the experiment on Earth, of which you are the result, has happened as a result of the Network, Confederation, whatever you wish to call it, of planets knowing that something was necessary. From the Zeta point of view (though they would not understand the feeling of the emotion or even the thought of a desperate act), they thought, "What else can we do? We have tried everything else and something must change." They could not introduce negativity just bang! into their planet, not even on a subtle level, because, not having been exposed to that energy for so long, it makes them literally sick. It would be impossible for them to live with their race or any members of their race again. Because of thousands of years and even dimensions of inbreeding, many of these races, especially the ones of Reticuli influence, do not understand that the emotions that they do feel are so consistent that they no longer feel like emotions but like a state of being.

In large part this state is calm and peace, seen by many Eastern religions and sects as being the goal. We will see in time how much of their history of the past and the recent past, including the Eastern religious influence and the Western thirst for technology, has led in one probable future to this Zeta Reticuli culture that will speak to you. They are, in fact, a version of the future selves of everyone in this room tonight, because all of you can trace yourselves back at some point to the 144,000. There is no "select elect" of 144,000. It is not a small group of people on this planet. Everyone at some point can trace his or her soul structure back to that. Everyone who is on this planet now can do that; you're here now so you can do that.

Joopah will go into that at some depth. I am Grandpa Zoosh telling you what it's going to be about here and giving you an overview. I might talk to you again later. But I think we'll let Joopah come in. Joopah has undergone a change through Robert in recent times. He used to be rather cut-and-dried about things, but he is now evolving and might be experienced a little differently. So I will say good-bye for now. We'll let Joopah come in to explain on a more personal level who you are, who they are, why their future, as they are living it, must be altered, and what you have to do with it. So I'll say good-bye for now.

All right, Joopah here. I thank Zoosh for setting me up. Now to give you my point of view. Our race, the Reticulan race and races of our influence, has been identified (in the past, at least) as being the short little guys with the big heads and the big eyes. I currently occupy a body, however, that has a head kind of in between your size and the guys with the big heads. My eyes are not quite as big as theirs, for I am, in fact, a hybrid just like your race, which was described by Zoosh as being a hybrid of the beings who came here and settled and created their number into your number, influencing you. Some of them, for example, concentrating on the darker races, were allegedly a creation of Sirius and the cetacean group in which Sirius is strongly involved. Dolphins and whales are also beings from Sirius who owe a certain allegiance. They have pledged to be here on Earth and carry mankind's history from the beginning to the present until you are ready to receive their messages. They begin to give that now to the young ones as well as to some channels. But the real work will be with the young ones.

Sirius has been involved in the beginning of the seeding of this planet in the creation of the darker-skinned races. The areas of the Pleiades and Andromeda have been involved in the creation of lighter-skinned races. Zeta Reticuli has not actually been involved on the seeding level, but it has been involved in this monitored experiment. They have been the scientific observers due to the fact that their way of being could allow them to be relatively objective even under conditions that were uncomfortable.

The Pleiadians, for example, due to their constitution and makeup, could not really take someone on board and do some of the scientific tests that have been necessary to check up on the progress of the genetic experiment. This is because of their inability to directly experience fear from others and their inability, whether personal or technical, to screen it out completely.

The Zetas

So the Zeta Reticuli race was chosen to be in charge of the scientific side of things because they are a highly technically involved and evolved species. This was considered the wisest decision because it was necessary for the Zeta beings to see how their past planetary choice — to eliminate emotions, to perfect technology, and to evolve themselves as a mass mind in order to create one group experience or single-mind race consciousness — could lead to the end of their race as they knew it while almost at the zenith of their civilization.

These beings were recognized by the Council, by the Confederation — whatever you wish to call it — as being the ones for whom it was most important to see the genetic experiment through from the beginning so that they would realize how their decisions had created their inevitable destruction. Destruction in this case does not mean by trauma or by tragedy or anything like that; it simply means the cessation of existence due to their lack of ability to re-create themselves.

The Zeta beings, the short ones, continue to re-create themselves largely through cloning. Their body, as they experience it at their dimension, is largely made up of compressed white light or what they would call plasma, even though there is some biological tissue within the head. But it is not liquid plasma; it is more like light plasma, and it is highly condensed. They have created what they believe to be the most advanced body for serving their needs, you understand.

So in order to allow the maximum number of beings to be incarnated, they chose to have a body that did not require a lot of biological nutrition; to take food in, to have eliminations and so on was not really required. Thus they have created a body that is short and can allow many more to incarnate, as it were. This has also created the misapprehension in many who have seen them that they are robotic because of their apparently ungainly and occasionally stiff, almost automatonlike motions. Because of their mass consciousness, they believe that this is efficient, and efficiency to them is much more important than individuality. Individuality is almost unknown. It is somewhat understood as a concept, but it is not part of their experience.

For right now I will say that the Council thought it was best that the Zeta beings be the scientists so they would be required to see the genetic experiment.

In the beginning the Zeta beings did not really understand what they had to gain from this, because at the beginning of the genetic experiment they were still able to reproduce themselves. But at your now point in time and for the last 150 to 200 years the beings that they reproduced through cloning have had a much shorter life span, and those that have been reproduced by semibiological means have not survived at all. So there has been great stress, if you can call it that, in their experience, more like a low-keyed sense of urgency to do something.

As a race consciousness they were advised by the Council that the genetic experiment on Earth in which they were taking part was happening in their past lives. They now understand that the 144,000 which evolved into you will evolve on a soul level into them. They now perceive you differently; they recognize that they have something to gain here.

In the beginning they were not involved in any genetic interaction. They were the overseers. They tested your body's cells. They would do the standard thing that is often reported by those of you who have had or read about contacts. They would alter the energy in an area so that they could move in their energy field at their own dimension. Then they would get out, get close enough to the Earth individual so that they could be brought into the ship.

The person would then have a genetic scraping. (This is not uncomfortable. You could run a wooden paddle over your arm and that would be like a genetic scraping. It doesn't require a lot of cells.) Ofttimes an examination of the reproductive system would be involved. This would be explored without any qualms, in all areas of the body. The male or the female would be explored in that way, but there were not really a lot of what you'd call major invasions. Feeling and seeking, essentially on a scientific level, was what was going on.

Well, about 150 to 175 years ago, they realized their real reason for being involved with you was to alter the course of their destiny. It became abundantly clear to them that they could not alter it in their current time, but that they had to alter it right here, right now, in their past lives. When they understood you were their past lives, they changed the entire course of their experiment, with the approval of the Network. The Network, after all, was simply waiting for the Zetas to “get” it and once they did they would be given a free hand, because then they became personally involved. As an aside, I might add that it was thought there would be an increased level of personal involvement that would perhaps be felt by the Earth contactee.

On a given ship oftentimes there would be one (usually no more) Zeta being who would be your overseer, who would come over, and if you were in discomfort, would wave his hand over your third eye and crown chakra and so on and the discomfort would go away. They would be almost like a friend — as much as those people can be friendly. Oftentimes in repeated contacts the Earth contactee would come to recognize this individual by his energy or by his concern for them. Naturally, these particular beings would have been the Earth person’s future life, and they could easily recognize their own past life by the familiarity of its energy. The soul, while it moves differently in different planets and so on, will essentially have a recognizable energy pattern. Were you to go back in a meditation or even physically to a past life, you would recognize very easily the energy of your previous incarnation because it would feel familiar. It would feel like home.

These beings then began to recognize the need to alter their birthing idea. They recognized that Earth did not have a lack of population problem — quite the opposite; there was an exploding population. They thought to themselves, “We don’t need an exploding population, but we do need a continuing population, and right now we have a decreasing population. What can we do to change that?”

They asked for permission, and it was given. Then began the second phase of the genetic experiment. The first phase of the experiment was to create on this planet the most powerfully curious and survival-conscious individual, among other traits. To create not a breeding stock but an individual who was of a versatile nature. The first phase in your development had involved other planetary cultures as well — Sirius, Pleiades, Andromeda, Orion and so on. There will be and have been other interactions, but for tonight we talk about the Zeta Reticulans because they are the future you.

So then it was understood that a change must take place. Things became more personal. Since they were of a cloning state of mind and since their knowledge of genetics (from your current level of understanding) was almost a perfected science, something that was very easy to do through their technology, it was natural (since technology was their idea of a goal for perfection) for them to perceive that the obvious thing to do was to create, not a race of human beings on Zeta Reticulum but another hybrid, by working with their past lives and obtaining permission at the soul level (which was granted). After all, these Earth beings were already hybrids and the idea of adding another hybrid to that soul consciousness was not considered to be any affront to the human-being race consciousness. The Council said, "All right, that's part of the reason you're here." So it was begun. In this case, to be specific, there was removal of sperm as well as the removal of ova, or the eggs, from human beings.

Recognize that these human beings did not always feel like this was something they were volunteering to do. "Take my sperm! Take my ova, please!" Not that. The permission was something that happened on the unconscious soul level. So it did not feel okay.

This change you are going through and which has been signaled by your Harmonic Convergence, really announces the raising of the consciousness. The subconscious, as Zoosh has mentioned, is moving into your conscious mind, which is why you sometimes have extreme experiences. But it will allow you to expand your mind and your subconscious so that it will be a little more accessible. Of course, as you move to the fifth dimension, then the unconscious moves into the space occupied by your consciousness and you have access on a larger level. But that's another story.

For now, the change is from subconscious to conscious, so the individuals taken aboard did not really know that they had given permission. Your unconscious is just what is described — not conscious; you're not aware of it. You're aware of it when your body sleeps, of course, because you're in your soul, but that is kept from you in this life so you can have the joy of discovery and the curiosity which is enhanced by scrutiny. You choose to discover and rediscover so you might define and redefine your life here.

Thus when an individual would be taken aboard, they would very often be frightened. It would be uncommon were they not frightened. So fear was a factor. As a result, the Zeta beings had to use a very strong electronic field to protect them from this fear. Their initial contacts with you and their exposure to your fear, even at a subtle level, let them know rather immediately that they could not tolerate exposure to that fear energy, that it would be as destructive as being blasted with atomic radiation full force. They might survive for a little while, but not long, and they would certainly not be able to mingle with their family and those they were familiar with. So they began to crank up the juice on the field a little bit so that it would protect them from feeling your fear.

As a result, your bodies (those who were taken on board the ship) were encapsulated more. There was that sense, then, of being out of touch with one's captors, as they appeared to be. The communications seemed to be one way — they would say, "Do this, do that," or they would perhaps even say, "We're now going to do this or that" — or, even worse, they would just be doing this and that. If you wanted someone to talk to, perhaps the one that had become your "friend" would come over and say, "Everything will be all right," and would touch your forehead. Things felt better, but didn't feel all right, you understand.

So that was the beginning, though somewhat hobbled due to the Zetas' lack of understanding of what they were doing. They knew they had to create a secondary hybrid — that being of the future Zeta race — with their own past-life human being. This resulted eventually in what I now am, a being that would look not too far afield from yourselves, but definitely different. If I were to walk down the street I'd get noticed every time, no matter what.

The purpose, though, was to experience the best of both, to have a link between the civilizations so that the Zetas could have a greater understanding of the advantages of emotions and the advantages — yes, advantages — of discomforts and what they might necessarily give you, by helping you to recreate your life so that you might in time begin to understand them better. For in truth, that energy field they encapsulated you in literally cut off communication by a level of 90%. As you know, most communication is energetic. It is an exchange on an energy level and on the emotional level, since emotions are essentially that electrical stuff that connects the soul or the inspirational self with the physical self and which literally conducts the energy of communication between individuals. Since that was cut off and you were encapsulated in your own energy field and then surrounded with their energy fields so they could be near you, then the only communication that could happen would be on their level, meaning intellectual.

Thus they would not have any understanding of your experiences on the emotional/physical level as you understood them. They did not actually think of you as being a lesser being, but they did not think of you as being an evolved being, either. This could be thought to be prejudice because they had defined you, classified you, put you in a box with a label, so to speak. This is not surprising, since they are your future selves based upon a past probability. I say "past" meaning pre- Harmonic Convergence, actually pre-1982, for things started to change around 1982 to build toward the Harmonic Convergence clock.

The Zetas are beginning to change, since enough changes have been put into place to allow for some change in their current time. However, the communications were never very good, and you will read about this now in some popular books describing various individuals' contact with these beings as something that left a lot to be desired on the level of communications; for fear would often come up, and the field would be intensified so that nothing could leak through and affect the Zeta beings. As a result, the individual would actually be encapsulated in their own fear — and fear can radiate just like energy and communication radiate. You might walk into a room and feel someone's energy as an emotion without their even turning around. You have a feeling, a little discomfort, "Oh, they might be angry." Well, it's like that. You wouldn't be able to project that energy, so you would be locked in an energy field of fear. Thus the fear would be bumped up perhaps to terror, unreasonable terror, because under the circumstances you might actually feel afraid but are not in fact terrified. But you feel terrified because your fear energy has no place to go.

Contactees, as they have become to be known, would ask the obvious question: "Why don't you tell me what you're doing? I'm afraid." And the Zeta beings would say, "What's 'afraid'?" To them, life is a mental complex; it is thoughts, instructions, rearrangements, specifics, technologies: "What is this? How do we use it? We put it here. All right, we understand that" — but with no frame of reference for "afraid," no ability to say, "Oh yes, we understand fear; we can do a lot to help you feel better." They had no frame of reference due to the fact that they had, at an early stage of their development, decided that emotions were too much trouble, caused too much conflict, caused too much stress, and so chose to steer a course of events that would allow their race to eliminate emotions, having believed that they had in their present eliminated them. (However, they are altering that belief now as a result of the development of the hybridized race and greater communications between our species — "our" meaning your species and the parent race of Zeta beings.) They again see things differently.

What occurs to the Zetas now is a dawning that fear is a thing as well as an idea. They have studied what fear is from the way you behave and the way you act. But not having a personal identification for it (since their now emotions fall under the heading of what you experience as common peace), they know nothing about fear. They do not even think they are experiencing emotions, but you would experience what they are feeling on an energy level as calm and peace. They do not have, as you understand it, curiosity. Rather, they have an intellectual desire to create perfection as they see it.

There is a need for increased communication. As a result of their race dying out, their lack of ability to reproduce themselves and the fact that bodies could be reproduced in large part technologically, they could see that the mind did not have a desire to continue to live due to its belief that perfection had been attained. They saw that it would not be sufficient for them to continue to study you by themselves. It was necessary to create someone, some being who could carry on their race consciousness and still have a will to live, as they perceive it, a lust for life. (They did not exactly understand what lust means, but in their mind it is a desire to live for no apparent reason, a desire to stay in a physical body and live without knowing that life exists beyond the body and so on. As you know, a human being will do a great deal to stay in the body, even under extreme circumstances of bodily discomfort. So their understanding of lust for life is more akin to that.)

Need for a Zeta-Human Hybrid

So they required a bridge race that they could speak to that would understand their concepts and that would equally understand the Earth being, someone with whom they could telepathically and energetically exchange without the need of protective devices. It had to be something that was done right away so that the bridge race would inherit their race consciousness. Should the experiment not come to fruition before their race died out, they would at least have this bridge race. And if the increased knowledge passed on to the hybrid race — of which I am a portion — could help them to understand more quickly what was going on, there might be a possibility to perpetuate their race as well. This was the sense of urgency that they experienced as stress. If stress were an entire body, stress to them would be like the mere tip of your finger, but it would be the outer limits of what they could experience in their makeup.

They clearly understand the need to have increased communication with you. They also clearly understand that you as a species are really themselves, although this was not very clear to them in the beginning. Oh, they understood it on a mental level but now they are beginning to grasp it on a felt emotional/physical level, as much as they can experience that energy. They are beginning to see that they can go back into their past and alter it; that it may not be necessary for their future to occur as it has and that if they make a change on a very careful level, maybe their race consciousness can develop in a different way and have a certain amount of emotions that are creative and fulfilling, retaining their mental power as well as their spiritual and their form of physicality. So it is their intention now to alter their past lives so that they might create a different future for those past lives, which they would experience as their present.

The race consciousness, then, of the Zeta beings and your own consciousness as a human being are now in somewhat of an equilibrium. Even though they know more of what is going on, they know what is going on from their perspective. They do not necessarily know what is going on from your perspective, and since they want to know, that's where I come in. I am the result of about 175 years of trying to perfect a stable physical body that could not only be biologically created as you are, but could also be cloned. Not as an alternative that would replace the biological, but simply in case it was necessary to populate the planet due to the exhaustion of the Zeta species, so that we could create a culture. I, for example, have been not exactly cloned, but I have had some cloned elements in me. I am the first of the species that has a sufficient personality and a sufficiently efficient body to be able to interact reasonably well with human beings as well as with the parent race, the traditional Zeta beings.

It is, then, my intent to interact with you as well. They will still need some time to understand why the Great Unknown, as they would perceive it, would create the lack of perpetuation of their race. They still need to learn the lesson that the alteration of consciousness can be done through unfoldment, and that the elimination of that unfoldment, simply because it is perceived of as being inefficient (meaning emotions, judged by the mind in this case) is not allowed to continue forever.

Any single being or any race or culture of beings that would choose to create and perpetuate itself would do so for the ultimate examination and experience of as many aspects as could be created of their own consciousness on a planetary level and on an individual or mass level. In order to create that unfolding experience, all aspects of life that you know and experience, as well as a few others, would necessarily be required to continue this reproduction. There is one aspect in this case — the emotional self — that was stifled. But the emotional self, the emotional body, as you understand it, is the electrical stuff that conducts directly the spirit energy into the physical body. If the emotional energy is squashed, it reduces the amount of energy directly transferred from the spirit into the physical self, and makes it necessary for the physical self to operate at a very low or inefficient standard.

Now, the Zeta beings created an efficient technological society and a highly advanced mental society, but their physical body was not strong, powerful or efficient due to its technological structure. Thus they experienced, as a race, a separation of spirit from day-to-day consciousness. They would perceive, then, their spiritual selves to be a separate planetary version of themselves they could tap into, but not while doing other tasks. It required their absolute concentration to be in touch with their spirit selves.

In this case we are talking about beings who needed to access greater levels of themselves by seemingly having to go backwards and pick up where they'd left off, reincorporating emotions, albeit at a somewhat slow and reduced rate, in order to get the most out of life. Having found the point of view where emotional energy is available to them, they are increasing the emotional energy in their race experience as fast as they can. But it will take time, and the race now is on to see whether their race, as they exist, can be perpetuated without the need of having to transfer their entire race consciousness over to a hybrid race such as I am.

This is a good place to pause. I will take questions upon the subject matter as it has come up so far.

Human Evolution

When you talked about the evolution of man, what did they look like?

The initial evolution of mankind was the blending between the beings who came from other planetary areas and the Terrans, who had transferred their physical, emotional, spiritual and mental selves to Earth. This created some variations of what you would call hairy, tall, short, stocky, but not so much of the primitive mankind. (These so-called Stone Age beings came later.) Evolution was not as it is believed — that is, a basically hairy and undistinguished (in terms of being subtle) race gradually through some unknown means developing into something else. You might as well say that because of its high evolutionary status, a dog suddenly turns into a cat.

So-called primitive mankind was developed later in an experiment during a period when your planet was opened to free experimentation by sociological and biological engineers. This was a very short time, but it was perceived for a while that it was necessary to have new ideas come in that the Council may not have thought of themselves. You might say it was a free-form, experimental time, but it did not last long. It can be clocked, measured in terms of years, only because your science believes that years are fixed. But it is more than that; it was an interdimensional experience, so while it might seem to last from 7 to 14 million years (depending upon how you measure time), it was really not that long in terms of real experience.

I will say, then, that some of the original 144,000 beings were somewhat tall and had some slight body hair (more than you have now). This was perceived as being insufficient, because these beings were as a cross between those who came here. These beings were somewhat similar to you in appearance but had features that were more delicate, more refined, in the sense that it was not necessary for them to have a great deal of defensive measures; they had technological means to protect themselves. It was necessary to have a being that would be relatively vulnerable, but not so fragile as to shatter if it fell down. So it took a while to get the format and structure down.

It was also deemed to be absolutely essential, due to the climate of this planet (the extreme temperatures and so on), that different variations (albeit slight) would be created on the physical level to adapt them to these different climates. It was understood in the beginning that beings would eventually move around on the planet, but in the beginning they wanted to see the effect of the climate and the advantage of having beings who were created for a particular climate.

It was recognized that the genetic beings who would turn into yourselves over the years and dimensions would be going to many different planets that would have extreme weather conditions — extreme cold, extreme heat, perhaps rain all the time, perhaps snow and so on — and that any one planet could handle only so many conditions. But they had created a vision of a sufficiently wide range of weather conditions so you might be able to experience much of what you will later find in the initial exploration of your solar system.

So it took time to develop the beings that you now recognize as variations of your species.

The Hybrid Race

If there have been Zeta-human hybrids, do they have a body now that is similar to ours?

Oh, yes. Yes indeed. It is not unusual. You understand that there are also variations of human beings. But to get a basic average of Zeta hybrid bodies, I would say that they average around 5'4" to 5'6". The known biological difference is that they have about six to eight feet less intestine than you have, due to their diet having evolved into something that does not require their physical bodies to work as much to absorb food as your body does. They would likely have a slight alteration in their endocrine system, since their range of emotions, as they experience it, are not as extreme as yours. They might have some slight difference of appearance along the side of their head that would be considered an anomaly or even a damaged child on this planet, though there is no damage; it is purposeful. I would say that is the main noticeable difference. Their lung capacity would be perhaps a little less.

Do the hybrids have hands with three fingers like the Zetas, or . . .

We have four digits and a stump. We do not have a thumb per se; we have four digits. We have digits that are a little longer than this one, almost equal in size, but the stump, as it were, would be a form of thumb that would be about half the length of yours and come to a point. We do not have fingernails per se, but a rudimentary fingernail. Yes, we have feet. We would appear quite human; it would not take a lot to disguise us. We could really just put on gloves and a plastic mask and go out on Halloween and be accepted as one of the neighborhood kids, albeit a big one. Might not get much candy because we might be too big. We're about in the 5'6" to occasionally 5'8" range.

You said you require a plastic mask on your face. Would your face have the same features that ours do?

No. The eyes are fairly large and wraparound, but they are not huge compared to the parent race. The parent race's head would be quite large, extraordinarily large for their size, and their eyes would be more like this [gestures], understand? Our eyes are smaller but still wrap around.

What about the rest of your face and features? Nose?

We have a nose that is somewhat similar to your own. There might be a little more pronounced cheekbone and a little heavier bone structure in this area than most of you have. Other than that, there is very little hair to speak of — little tufts, you might say, and usually sparse at that. Sometimes it is simply removed or not noticeable, somewhat smoother up here. The contours of the head might have a defined groove here, but it would not be something that is unpleasant to look at. It would seem to be bone structure and definition of bone structure. The body is essentially similar in appearance on the exterior. The interior is another matter.

Do you have a mouth?

Yes, we have a mouth. We do not have too much in the way of teeth. We have a small mouth, but it is one with lips and is defined. It would appear to you as a mouth.

How long would it take you to travel to your planet from here?

Most of the distance is covered in about as much time as it would take you to do that [snaps fingers]. The rest of the few hours of time would be involved in navigating through solar systems and gravitational pulls so that we could get to a relatively open area of space to do that [snaps fingers]. Of course, we can travel in our bodies, but we choose to travel in vehicles.

What is our government's role in these abductions?

Since the idea of government perceives itself to be in this case largely your protector, they have not felt empowered in any way to protect you from these contacts; rather, the reverse. They feel absolutely and completely helpless. How would you feel about your government if it were to throw its hands up in the air (as it were), and the President came on the TV and stated, "Citizens of the United States, I must report to you tonight that you are being invaded right now by a group of aliens who might very well take you aboard their spaceships and do strange and terrible things to you. We have absolutely no ability to protect you in any way." Their perspective is that all hell would break loose. So they perceive that this stonewalling is to the benefit of the human beings. And you understand, this is a worldwide government experience.

I refer to this because it is not that they are the bad guys, even though it would appear so. It is that they genuinely believe that denying something's existence will protect the larger portion of the population and lull it into a sense of complacency by its belief that something does not exist. They think if you can use that technique, sometimes referred to as the "big lie," people can be lulled into a sense of complacency. It is believed that this sense of complacency is to the advantage of order (not law and order), order being perceived of as a valuable tool in the regulation of human beings. Order has won out as a motivation.

Will the hybrid race ever be living on the planet Earth?

When I say living on the planet Earth, I will say that in time, especially as Earth joins more of the energy of its fourth-dimensional self, there will be more direct contact on a physical level. Right now in time there will be experiences published, but for now the contacts are taking place with the hybrids on the dream level — a level that is real, but you call it dreams. There will be more experience of the hybrids being seen on ships by those who have physical contact, and there will be the feeling that the hybrid is an interpreter, a go-between. There will be a feeling of warmth felt from the hybrid and returned by the human being. So that sense of contact will increase. As far as our actual living here on the planet, moving in next door, as it were, with the wife and kiddies, I would say that is not in the immediate future.

Can hybrids procreate, or are they still cloning?

We're not quite yet at the level of procreation because our sexual reproductive systems have not yet come totally online, as it were, and this is not surprising, since our parent race does not know what to do with the thing. So we are waiting for them to figure out that this is a value and not simply a strange and bizarre ritual conducted by human beings. When they figure that out, and they're getting there, then we'll be able to do it, just like you. Though we may not experience this in the same way, there will be the opportunity of it.

Joopah, are you familiar with the book by Budd Hopkins called Intruders? He talked about women who were abducted and became pregnant, and then three months later the Zetas took the fetus, and it was raised on the ship. Some have even been up on the ship again and have seen the children, who are very fragile and wise. Do you know of any?

This was perceived of for a while as being advantageous. You understand that these pregnancies, as you would perceive them, were what you would call on your now planet something where a woman would have artificial insemination. It was done on an insemination level, and the woman would actually be carrying a Zeta-human hybrid. It was perceived in the beginning, especially in the recent times, as a step just before the step that has created myself, and that this might be a valuable tool to allow the fetus to experience the mother's emotions so it would have a greater grasp of what emotions are. When it was taken back out of the mother and allowed to develop, but at a speeded-up level within the laboratory, becoming what you would call a baby, the fetus would have a greater understanding of emotions and still not have a serious sense of separation from the mother. It was believed that this might be advantageous to teach the parent race what emotions are. So for some time this has been going on as a sub-experiment.

Was this good?

There have been some advantages due to the fact that those children were able to have a greater sense of philosophical knowledge, or an Earth-transplanted knowledge within their psyches due to the experience within the mother. However, because this was essentially a biological birth, not a cloning of these children, they have been very frail due to the incomplete nature of the biological hybridization. It is now perceived that the eventual hybrid will be the bridge, but these beings will be involved much more devoutly with the Zeta parent race to help to explain to them the complexities of the human psyche and the involvement of the emotions. Of course, the emotional knowledge they have would not have anything to do with the parent Zeta race. It was believed that they could be interpreters, as it were. This experiment is not a particularly widespread one, but it is one that is valuable and important.

It is also likely that this race of beings you have referred to, this particular race of hybrids, are likely to create a manifesto almost as a group of philosophers in any given time in your societies might create a philosophy, what they refer to as a religion or a way of living. It is likely these hybrids might create a manifesto of life that could be applied as a creation of a form or order of how the parent race can best treat the hybrids and how the hybrids can best treat the parent race and so on. Almost a documentation process, almost a constitution for the interracial confrontations — not clashing confrontations, but awarenesses, the interracial awareness adjustments.

So these beings have a very important role to play, and it has been believed also of value to bring some of the mothers up to the ships when these beings that you have referred to have become a little bit too much of the Zeta being as a result of their almost total exposure to the Zetas and practically none to the human beings. It has been necessary, then, to bring some of the mothers up and to simply expose the child's energy to the original biological mother so that that biological being could again draw from the mother's energy and exchange a cyclic energy between them. Most often the mothers will, just by the exchange of energy, instantly recognize that this was someone they carried for a while, almost as a hibernation, like a cave would hold a sleeping bear, and that they had made a contribution.

You must understand that the Zeta beings do not feel that anyone is being abducted or kidnapped. They do feel that these Earth people have given permission on the unconscious soul level, so they do not perceive that anything is going on that could be wrong as you understand it. However, this group of beings is likely to be the one to explain to the Zetas what would be perceived of as proper behavior and what would be improper to the human being in a way that the Zetas could understand it. They are very intelligent and can communicate telepathically as well as through stunted verbal patterns. This is the present status of that situation.

How is one selected?

They have given permission on the soul level, they are past lives of the Zeta beings, and they are desirous of this contact to expand their lives. So, as the soul might refer to it, it is largely karmic.

Do the Zetas have a recorded history?

They do not really have language as you understand it, in terms of script and text. We can create this, but it is not our primary mode of communication. Speaking for the parent race and including the hybrids, since we are connected to that, we have a mass consciousness that is available to us at all times, so there is no great need to have written records and documents. However, our language and knowledge can be interpreted by sign or a structured language in a written form, but more through touch and energy. We can write down a form of language, and also by physical motion. Some have stated that the language of energy can best be experienced by forming a Zeta design that you might call a language — by a form like this — and that the motion of this energy done physically can create a greater sense of connection to the parent race. You will find in some cultures that hand motions and dance are more pronounced, and when those hand motions seem to have very specific patterns but no specific meanings, then we are dealing with the Zeta and other languages that are of great value when motion is involved.

So you're only 53 miles away from here?

Sixty-three.

Is it possible for one of us to go?

Go? Why go when we can come? The energy will come down later and you will be encouraged to experience it, but I will not make promises.

We can't go to the ship?

I'm not saying that. I'm just saying I will not make promises. Understand that your governments make attempts to keep us away. They do not inform you of those attempts, but they do. Most of the high-energy laser experimentation (which is almost totally valueless for this purpose), as well as the plasmic-generated energy devices (which also have very little effect) have been developed as weapons. The micro-wave transmissions, the ultrasonic transmissions and the post-radionics are all somewhat effective.

So we have to be a little more careful than we once were. That's why most of the contact experiences will happen in areas where microwave transmissions and background radiations are at a low level, or in areas that are fairly deserted or very earthy in nature — trees, forests, grass and so on. The moisture of the area does allow conductivity to occur in the solidification of the ship into your dimension. A form of electricity is created and the moisture of the area is supportive of that electricity.

Do you use magnetic attraction to operate your ships?

I would not say that. That is really rudimentary, so rudimentary ships are still using a form of attracting magnetic pulses. It is, in our most recent designs, something that essentially uses the compression and expansion of light energy. This is the simplest. Always the intention is to simplify technology so that it can be reproduced with little effort. The magnetic attracting devices you refer to were a couple of steps back.

Are there any other races working with the hybrids besides the Zeta beings?

Of course, there is the Council. We are aware of their overseer-ship. The Andromedans are involved there to some extent, and the Arcturians who are the consultants to the Andromedans. But we do not have a direct connection with them at this time. The Council, as far as you experience it, is more of an Andromedan "experience right now" philosophy. So we will receive some knowledge and training and energy from that area.

Do the races intermix, and is there a free exchange of information between the different galactic . . . ?

Oh, yes indeed. I can assure you the experiment that's going on here is the most scrutinized experiment going on in this corner of the universe. That is why at any given moment there are so many ships in the sky, even though you do not always see them. Very often what you perceive as hallucinations are ships moving in and out of dimensions that will sometimes leave a trace in the sky.

All of the rest of you extraterrestrials have this intermingling of information, but our government, our world, tries to keep you away.

Officialese makes that effort. But there is also a certain amount of under-the-table negotiations. Most high-powered governments have a government-behind-the-government. Those individuals are very well aware of us and we have face-to-face conversations on a regular basis. It is their intent and desire to bring your planet's culture along slowly into the knowledge of our existence. Since we recognize that they have a greater knowledge of the structure of negative energy and that the need exists for the balance of positive energy as well as feminine and masculine energy, we will defer in large part to their opinions regarding the gradual unfoldment of our presence.

It was the original suggestion of the shadow government (as they are sometimes called) that our existence be revealed largely through drama and the idea of us as the enemy. It was perceived by them, even with the knowledge they have (which is considerable, due to our and others' sharing, time travelers and so on), that mankind really reaches peace through war with individuals. And it is their belief (and thus will give them their power) that mankind will come to peace with us if it believes that there is some form of clash or conflict that is necessary or going on. So the idea, then, is to create the illusion of a clash or confrontation so that the "battle for space" (not real) will be eventually "won" (not real), and then peace could take place. And then, having control of the situation, Earth could then spread its culture to the space races who so desperately need it.

So, having a certain amount of humor toward this approach, we have given them a lot of what they want because even though it would seem to create a great deal of stress, we are really not allowed to interfere in the actual experience of your individual unfold-ments, your karmic patterns and so on — what you came here to learn. We are not really allowed to interfere. We can add this: We can bring more to you, but only if you have chosen to create that in your individual experience. We cannot step in and say, “Now it’s going to be our way.” We’re not allowed to do that, so we don’t. And we see the inevitable wisdom in that point of view. I don’t have to tell you that as any good cook knows, if you rush the recipe it may not turn out the way you planned.

Let’s go on and back to Zoosh for a time.

Experiencing Energies Projected from ET Vessels

All right, Zoosh speaking. I thank Joopah for his patient explanations and fleshing out the stories. I will say that due to the cooperation of several vessels, not just small 26-foot to 32-foot pilot ships but several really large vessels, you will be quite close — within 12 vertical miles. It will be possible for those of you who feel comfortable with it to experience energies at a more powerful level. That will bring to you some recollections that you need to experience. Now, know this: You need only take that energy that feels comfortable for you and be assured that your souls will not encourage you to take anything other than that. Each one of you might feel a greater or lesser degree of the energy, and your soul will always inevitably regulate that flow. You will experience what is right for you when it is right for you.

Understand, then, that there will be a few ships cooperating in this venture. There will be a very large vehicle that hangs around (I do not like to use the term) in this area from Sirius that has come to be known from time to time as the V. It will be the “V,” though that is not its real name, but has been discovered as a pattern of -shaped lines. That ten-mile-long vehicle, which of course cannot be seen, will be centered directly above this room, since there are two individuals in this room now who have had direct physical experience on that vehicle. It is to their benefit to check you out and see how you are doing. Others of you will find that it can be useful to experience that energy.

There will be three other vehicles, one from Zeta Reticuli, one from Orion and one from Pleiades, that will form a triangle around that vehicle as best they can, allowing for its shape. They will form a triangle around the center of it. Then I will ask you all when that energy is present to simply relax into it and not feel the need for excessive mental stimulation. I may drone on about this or that, but it is really unnecessary for you to listen to me. I will be in large part instructing your emotional-energy bodies or speaking from time to time to your minds, which like to think they're in this experience. I will encourage you not to get too involved in that.

Largely, this is an experience to feel a sense of home. Many of you feel that you've been abandoned here: "Take me home; you left me here." This is to remind you of the energy of home.

After we do that we'll take a few personal questions that you might feel are associated with contact you might have had with off-planet beings, or personal questions that are directly related to this topic.

So I will ask those of you who wish to participate to simply get into a comfortable position and take your shoes off, if you would. Take off any electronic watches that you might have or other devices. You don't have to take off all your jewelry; let's not get too complicated. Your mechanical watch you can keep on. We'll not have any first- or second-class citizens on this voyage. Everybody rides on the same back.

Now, in a moment when I say "when," I will ask you to feel as much of the energy as you can comfortably feel, and I will talk you into it, not persuade you, but talk you easily into the energy.

Feeling a Sense of Home — Being a Dolphin

"When." Let's take on as much of the energy that you feel you can. This energy of home that you will all feel a little differently is designed to remind you of your purpose here on a deep, nontought level. It is designed to bring you to a level that we refer to as soul-level activation in the physical. You don't have to think about it. All will take place without thought. Just relax. If you can, see the ship or imagine its insides; allow yourself to imagine, but do not think. Do not structure the experience. Feel only the energy and allow it as best you can.

Now allow the focus of your energies to know that we will be here for a time.

Many of us are called during sleeping hours onto the ships, right?

Indeed yes, since that is the time when you can more easily converse with and interchange with these beings, due to the fact that the belief system of the ego structure assembled from your Earth experience in this incarnation does not pose such a restriction to communication.

Is there anything you can tell us, Zoosh, that would make our communicating with them easier for both of us?

Oh, thank you! I get to give you the old Zoosh exercise. You have heard this before. If you want to be more prepared to be open to communications from beings who are really different from you, practice it by picking out two or three individuals in a group that is relatively benign, a group of like-minded individuals and surveying that group. You don't have to do it all in one night. Pick out someone who is absolutely the least likely individual that you would ever approach under any circumstances, and strike up a conversation with him or her. Do what you can to make it a peaceful conversation — that is to say, allow him his beliefs, no matter how much they fly in the face of your own, without feeling the need to either agree with him or convince him that you are right and he is wrong.

Should the people who have been on this ship have any special function or try to do something?

Pay attention to the sea and its influence, because this vehicle from Sirius is largely involved in communications with dolphins and whales (otherwise known as cetaceans). Pay attention to your feelings about dolphins and whales, and if you have the opportunity to be with them or just be near the sea, allow that experience for yourself. If you can even imagine the feeling of dolphins and whales, fine. Be close to them, feel them; allow your energy, your imagination of their energy, to feel being a dolphin should you see one in captivity somewhere, or imagine them in your mind. Allow yourself to pretend to be inside them, because although they appear to be as fishes in the sea, they are really your parent race of the Sirians who came here disguised as these undercover agents cleverly disguised as fishes. But really they are the parent race and the founding fathers of the Sirian race. So be near the sea, if possible, and be near the dolphins and whales.
