

1

A Particle of Gold

December 2, 1996

I am a particle of the substance you know as gold. I would like to tell you a little bit about this substance. It is treasured for its monetary value, yes, but before that it was always utilized by members of the priest and priestess class because it can protect beyond its physical parameters.

Gold: Self-Motivated, Able to Absorb/Anoint/Initiate

Gold is an ore, yes, a mineral, but gold is self-motivated. As a self-motivated being, a human being knows that you go where you will and must, even where you can. Other things are less so; a rock in a stream tumbles along according to the whims of the water and erosion. But gold beams out an auric field that is so strong, especially to sensitives who might feel it, that the field becomes increasingly stronger, to the tenth power. A quantity of gold—let us say an ingot—might have an auric field that extends halfway to your moon, and anything within that range—be it a person, a plant, a stone, lightning, a cloud, a passing satellite, a ship from another planet, even what you call a falling star—could be absorbed, felt, understood and (this is most important) anointed.

Gold has the capability to anoint. The more ancient religions understood this. The vessels for their sacraments were made of gold because gold in and of itself anoints. It can also initiate. However, it cannot anoint or initiate in any way that is negative. So those who might try to use gold and its abilities in a negative way would be anointed in a positive way instead. This tells you that gold, not unlike yourself, has a sense of will, of determination. It will not be turned, for it is what it is and that is what it must be.

Two gold ingots, by working together, might easily radiate to Mars or even partway to Saturn. Put many, many ingots of gold together, such as exist in some places, and that gold can radiate to other star systems, even sometimes to the edge of the universe itself. This ability tells you that gold has absorbed all knowledge in your universe. It is the only element that can do this. Other elements do many wondrous things, but gold naturally absorbs.

You might ask, "Toward what end? Why?" Since gold naturally anoints and since it has felt and been aware of your souls before you were sent out by your Creator to ultimately become the Explorer Race, gold knows each and every one of you. Can you imagine that every particle of gold in this universe (and we are all united, no matter where we are) knows each and every one of you?

We always anoint whenever we are touched, and when some wisdom absorbed by gold is brought in contact with a human being who touches it, the gold passes on that wisdom to the living spirit of that person. The living spirit is the soul consciousness that lives in you. This means it is accessible to your conscious mind. You can ask for it.

Ways to Absorb Gold's Knowledge

Perhaps you have something gold-plated or a little solid gold ring. If you have a gold ring, turn it so that only the gold is facing you. Touch it to your eyelids or your third eye or your lips—any of these places. Before you do, ask that the gold give you any knowledge it has absorbed that would be good for you to have right now in your living spirit so that you might in time bring it to your conscious mind, using it to your benefit and perhaps the benefit of others. In this way you can bring about greater awareness.

Here's something else you can do: You can make gold water. If you find a particular item of gold that works well for you, stimulates your third eye or seems to cause you to feel well, if it will not oxidize, place it in a glass of clear water. Spring water is best, but if you have only city water, then filter it. (Chlorine tends to decrease its effectiveness, a curious side effect.)

After you place it in filtered or spring water, speak out loud to it and ask that the gold emit into the water knowledge that will be beneficial to your living spirit. Leave it in the water at least twelve hours, then drink, being careful not to swallow the object. Then remove the ring or coin and put it away.

Gold has been granted by the Creator of this universe with this responsibility of anointment. Now I'm going to tell you something that to my knowledge has never been stated before to the human race.

Gold Is Creator's Love in Third Dimension

If you could take a portion of Creator's heart, bring it to the dimension you are in now, it would feel like pure love, but it would take the form of gold. The Creator is often referred to as the Golden Lightbeing. This is not an accident. These inferences have been suggested to many religious leaders over many lifetimes, so it has gradually filtered into your mythology and philosophy and religious studies. This is reality. Creator makes certain, you see, that when you are on this planet where you learn so much in such a short time, you will have the elements essential for your growth, your projection and progress. Creator does this in such a way as to make you feel that It has provided many valuable, loving things, which will come up in the progress of this book: gold, clear quartz and many other things.

Is he bothering you [referring to Tiger, the cat]?

No. He is the right color, is he not? [Laughter.] Golden cat present.

Do you want questions?

Question time is available.

When gold radiates like that, what is its effect on space and the planets it goes through?

If gold were not valued as a currency and was just a pretty rock, people would put it around like they do with other pretty rocks. Then it would do what it is intended to do, which is to anoint freely, openly and availably. But because it is considered currency and important in that way, it is often shut away or put someplace where it will not be taken by the unauthorized. So we now need to put more gold into the public eye.

Interestingly enough, those who sell gold, even gold-plated things from little carts or shops in places where people gather, are doing a great service because the gold constantly emanates energy and provides greatly for the true enlightenment of beings who pass by. It is not an accident that you find gold attractive. It has been built into your very cells that you would be attracted to it, even when it is just itself and not carved into the many beautiful trinkets you make with it.

So it would be good someday to incorporate more in public places. I see that sometimes this has been done, especially in places of religious importance: gold leaf in churches and in places where there is great art. It takes such a tiny layer of gold to do good, though the more there is, the more it can do.

What happens when it's in hidden treasures?

It is often exposed, but in a vault it is behind so much cement or steel that it cannot radiate easily. A small amount of its radiation does come through, but not much.

Before the Spanish came to South America the natives had rooms full of gold. They understood this anointing effect, right?

They made beautiful objects and put them out for all people to see and use or wear. Even in biblical times things of gold were worn as vestments for religious services so that when the priest class walked amongst the people, people would touch the gold and absorb that which is of beauty to them. Over time the knowledge was lost and people began to think it was touching the famous people rather than the gold that anointed them. [Chuckles.]

Has gold always been what it is? Did it evolve from anything else?

Always. But since we know that the Creator's heart, being true love, would in this dimension become gold, one might speculate that our point of emergence was perhaps from Creator's heart.

The Cat's Role in Ancient Egypt

Since golden cat is here, I will say that in ancient Egypt the priest and priestess classes were informed that cat, being the closest representative of the teachers (the teachers of the priest and priestess class originated as beings from other planets or dimensions), had the ability to go to other dimensions and other planets in dreams, projections and deep meditation.

Cat was put forward as the being who would test the priest or priestess. That is how initiations with cats got started. If cat approached you on its own, you would know, "I am in balance. I am connected with spirit, other dimensions, other planets of love and beneficial energies." If cat would instead run away from you, you must say to yourself, "I must check my balance to see if I am all right." So cat provided the test for priest and priestess classes and was very often made into gold statues.

If people were out of balance, they would go to a gold statue, sitting perhaps on a pedestal, move their head and touch the gold statue, third eye to third eye, saying, "Please help me to come into balance." They would make the gesture toward cat energy, yes; but because gold was present, they believed that gold itself could help bring them into balance. This is certainly true for the spiritual trainee. It worked at least four times out of ten, so its reputation grew. After a while when knowledge was lost, golden cat was believed in some circles to be a deity, so it became a deity in practice. Initially golden cat was not a deity, but an assistant.

Earth's Plenitude of Gold

Does this planet have more gold on it than most planets?

Oh, yes, much, much more. Creator has provided you with some things here in great abundance that are very rare in other places. One thing that comes to mind is quartz, which is extremely rare and unusual on many planets that need it desperately. That is why many extraterrestrial civilizations, when you have opened trade with them, will want to trade for your beach sand. The light-colored sand is just what they need for their technological purposes as well as to melt and make into certain spiritual tools. Oh yes, quartz is there.

Then of course there is copper and silver and gold. All these things and many more that are placed here and in other places for you are not common elsewhere. As you can see by visiting your moon and even Mars, certain things are common, but some not so common.

Haven't the ETs been mining this planet for a million years and taken a lot of it away?

They have done some mining, yes. But as you know, even today gold that is mined or found does not go back into the Earth. Even today people are panning for gold in streams and creeks all over. They are still pulling gold out. Gold is actually common on Earth. One thinks it is rare because so much is held outside of public view, but it is actually common. You cannot say that on most other planets.

Have you been a particle on other planets?

Not physically, but I have been able to view things and even experience the senses of things on other planets. As a particle I have been only here as far as I know, except perhaps at my point of emergence.

Which was?

We believe, as we are speculating here, from the heart of the Creator. But this is speculation. Perhaps someone will confirm it at some point.

Do you have philosophical discussions with other particles about it?

No, we do not have discussions of the philosophy and meaning of things, because when one absorbs knowledge not necessarily meant for oneself but for passing on to others, discussions are not necessary. When one is involved in some greater beneficial task for a large group of souls, one experiences more of a feeling of love, camaraderie and friendship. We have this camaraderie, but we do not argue about what we know.

Zoosh has said that when ores or metals are mined without permission from where they lie in the Earth, at some point they will want to return. Will that happen soon here with gold? Will it want to go back into the planet, or will it act differently because of its nature?

Because of gold's purpose, I think it will not make such an effort to go back into the planet. In any event, you as a soul group will go on. Through the change of the planet itself, gold will return into various underground and aboveground places. I think gold will be a little different. We know we're supposed to be in contact with you.

So do you as a particle have memory of being in manufactured things and then recycled? How does your memory work?

My Journey on Earth

I remember a journey I once took. I remember being a portion of what you call a vein of gold. It was a very quiet time of resting, as one might rest while awaiting the task of working with human beings. It was a long, quiet time. After a while the other particles of gold around me and I began to notice a sound. We did not know what this sound was, though it sounded a little like the wind and some of us thought that perhaps it was the wind.

After a time other particles realized it was the sound of approaching water. We thought that perhaps soon we would be able to be with people. And it was so. Soon the vein of gold was exposed—it was a river that had been eroding the banks, you see. We particles bade each other farewell, promising to connect in our dreams, and off we went down the river, tumbling to and fro.

I remember doing that for a great deal of time, then it was dark again. There was no great sound, and I did not hear the river as close. Then there were many sounds—strong, loud sounds, even the sound of voices. There were miners panning the silt along the river's edge. When they dug a few feet from the river, I was pulled up as a particle of gold in what you call a nugget. Then I was placed in another small, dark place and eventually wound up in a shop where the nugget was melted. I became what you call a knife for a place setting.

From that point I went to a place I think you call San Francisco. I remember being a knife there. Occasionally human beings would touch me, and I was able on two occasions to pass on some anointment—once to a young woman who worked for the owner of the home and once to the owner's child. That was a great moment in my existence. Then I remember there was a great tumult.

An earthquake.

Yes, an earthquake. All was very quiet for a long time. Gradually over time there was light and some voices. Apparently the knife of which I was a portion had become seriously bent and twisted. But because gold is valued, it was picked up and from there carried around for a long time in a wooden box with other bits and pieces. It was in a cart and covered over, so there wasn't much chance to be touched by a human being. But one day it was passed on to a person who was making jewelry. Then it became a portion of a necklace. This is what I am now. I'm speaking to you (if I may describe my environs) from inside a wooden box with a thick, red-velvet lining. I am occasionally worn by the lady of the house, who lives in Boston.

But even though you are so isolated, you can still commune with all other pieces of gold?

Yes. We do this oftentimes to see how different human beings are progressing, especially those we have been able to anoint. In the case of the earthquake where the two individuals died, both decided to come back to Earth and were reincarnated. Other gold has occasionally been able to report to me how the two people I anointed in San Francisco are progressing. Shall I tell you what they're doing? One of them is now a police officer in Grand Rapids, Michigan. The other one, the young woman, is also female in this life. She is the mother of four beautiful children in India.

So you can touch all over the world.

Gold takes an affectionate interest in the beloveds we serve and we'll often share stories. Once, for example, the lady of the house in Boston, whose necklace I am now a portion of, put the necklace on and wore it to a party—a ball, do you still say? It was greatly admired. She is a woman of perhaps middle age, as it is called. Children, being children, always want to touch it. (Adults admire it but don't touch it. Children are allowed to touch many things that adults don't get to touch.)

Recently, within the past year and a half, maybe two and a half years, a young girl was allowed to touch the necklace. It was wonderful! One of my fellow pieces of gold in the necklace was able to anoint her with some wisdom for her living spirit. Soon this child will begin to have the desire to be a medical doctor, because her soul line has this wisdom. She will train to become a doctor and invent a new procedure that will save many lives.

So you can see into the future as well as the past!

We can sometimes see into the future of individuals. Not exact things, but the likely future. This is another reason that gold has been considered a religious item. People oftentimes have inspirations when they are around gold. Many, many ministers, cardinals, bishops and other religious figures already suspect that this is so.

I have carried a piece of gold every day of my life for years because of its vibration.

Many people do this. And it is a good thing, too.

Of all the gold on the planet, how is it that you are the one who came to talk to us?

I am not certain of the process myself, but all of a sudden I felt a call from the Zoosh being for a volunteer who had the wisdom to speak of such things. There are many particles who have the wisdom, and I was perhaps lucky enough to be the one who was chosen.

Ah, that's wonderful! We are so ignorant of the rest of the consciousness on this planet. We think they have to be human to have a consciousness.

This is perhaps the ultimate purpose of this Explorer Race book series, yes?

Yes, to show, from the large to the small, that they're all wonderfully alive.

Indeed it is so.

You're so content. Do you have a wish to be something?

Oh, no. The wonderful thing about being gold is that is a totally unified feeling. I am wherever gold is in terms of my existence in this universe. I now think that we are right in our speculation together that gold has come from the heart of the Creator. It is even more unifying. Oh, I will have to tell my fellows of this possibility! Perhaps I am not the first to consider it; perhaps I am just getting the news late. But it is a wonderful thought.

In my experience it is a fulfilling job and it is fulfillment itself to be gold. One is constantly moving, you know, in motion. Particles are in motion at all times. We do not desire rest; we enjoy being in motion. Perhaps this is one of the reasons why we are useful in anointing.

So you're not just sitting in that necklace in that box. You move around?

If you look at particles through good magnifying instruments, which I'm not sure you have yet, you can see that we are in motion. (I want to say e-motion, but perhaps it would not be a good word because of its other meaning.) We are in rather constant motion, and it is like a constant dance. It is very satisfying to be in constant and consistent dance—a rhythmic feeling, you know? Perhaps the particular attunement of our dance has something to do with why we were chosen to be the anointing tool. I am wondering, though I have no answer to this question, if perhaps the Creator's heart isn't always dancing, too.

Gold's Lightbodies in Universal Communication

How beautiful! Besides that movement, then, you have a spiritual body that can commune with all the rest of gold. It's not that you are moving and talking to them across the planet. Gold has a spiritual body, right?

Yes. As I say, the more of it you put together, the farther we can reach. Yes, we have a spiritual body—as you say, a lightbody.

How would you identify yourself? As gold, you are one particle in the gold?

Yes, one particle.

There are many of you in one atom, right?

Let me see—looking at my solar system, my immediate universe here is an atom.

It looks like a solar system.

It's not exactly, but there are bodies going around. It's hard to say.

Do you see other things orbiting around that are bigger than you are?

Oh, yes.

And you can and do communicate with them?

If it is necessary or pleasurable, yes.

In the lightbody you are free to go anywhere. As a lightbody you can move in consciousness.

As a lightbody, yes, not physically. Physically I am constrained to be wherever my particle is involved, as in the necklace now.

But your consciousness can communicate with gold in South Africa or anyplace else?

The Shape of the Universe

My lightbody is associated with my consciousness. I can communicate with the outer reaches of your universe. Since gold in quantity radiates and I can connect to gold in quantity, I can even see the shape of the universe as it currently exists.

Would you like me to draw you a picture of the shape of the universe?

Absolutely. Let me get you a pad.

I have my consultant here, my yellow cat.

Do you want me to move him?

No, no. Please leave him. He and I are current companions. [To the cat:] Yes, stay as long as you like, and go as soon as you wish. [Draws.] Please excuse the rough sketch, but this is the current shape of your universe.

Where are we?

You are here. (The dot is much too big. Can we allow for that?)

Yes. We are way out at the edge!

Do you know why you're way out there at the edge of the universe?

We're cloistered, quarantined.

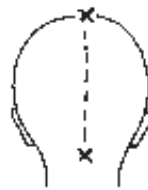

Yes, it's easier to keep prying eyes away from this mastery school.

So you even know about that! You know about all these things.

Well, we have been here . . .
. . . since the beginning.

Yes, so we have some knowledge of these things. I must admit that we tend to put more interest in what we are doing, but we have this knowledge, yes.

Golden cat has completed his visit with this body and has moved on to greener pastures, eh?

Now he's over there meditating. So when you communicate with gold in the rest of the universe, do you share what's happening in your part of the universe?

Only if asked. Remember, gold in other parts of the universe can also know what we know, so we are rarely asked. Gold that has never been here with you to anoint you, and is excited about the possibility, wants to know what it feels like to be touched by a human being, especially when you start trading more with extra-terrestrials. It is one thing to know and another to hear. Yet "what does it feel like?"—that exchange of energy is very exciting.

So when some of the gold has been taken off of the planet, you can literally follow it.

Oh, yes. There is some gold on other planets in other star systems. Although it is in abundance here, it exists in other places, too.

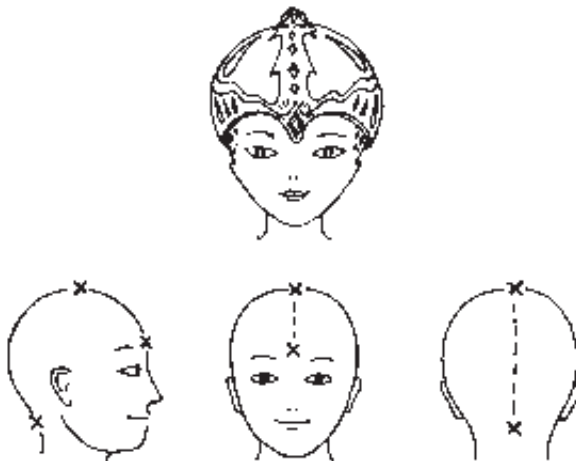

In most other planets, in most solar systems?

Gold's Use in Fifth-Dimensional Mars

Not in most others, but in some. It is highly regarded in most places. In some of the higher dimensions it is well understood what we can do. I will mention one because it is perhaps of interest to you. In fifth-dimensional Mars there is a wonderful civilization. They are very much involved in everything that can be done with meditation. Their bodies look very similar to yours. They wear something like a helmet or a hat. A portion of it comes down like this, down over the third eye to this point . . .

The bridge of the nose.

Yes. It ends there and goes up like a hat. Where the ears are (their ears are a little smaller) it comes down to the nape of the neck in a sort of rounded point. Some helmets are bejeweled, but most of them are gold. In terms of your measurements they are between 1/16 and 1/13" thick, which is not easily dented at that dimension. They wear it. The knowledge of the third eye and the crown are well-known here on Earth, but not the back of the neck. Reach around the back of your head and feel that indentation just below your skull. Slide your finger down and feel that first big vertebra. It is about three inches up from there. That point is almost as powerful as the third eye.

Adapting the Mars Idea for Meditation

When you make a connection between the third eye, the crown and that point, then you can do more. The helmet unites all three points. Those of you who meditate can make some kind of connection. Perhaps you'd want to wear something that would connect those parts of your body. It should improve your meditation. Create something that is conductive like gold. If you don't have gold, silver would be the next best. Copper is maybe a little too dense unless you silver-plate it on the inside.

Whatever you use, it would be better if it is gold-plated. You want to have a fairly thick gold-plating, not just electroplating; we want to have it actually dipped. Then connect those three points and put it over the top of your head. It doesn't have to be a whole helmet, just something that touches these places. This ought to help you with your meditations.

That's wonderful. But I thought that in the fifth dimension people are in their lightbodies, and their hands would go right through gold.

At the fifth dimension gold is different. Gold there is much stronger. Here gold is soft and malleable. If you were to take a helmet 1/13" thick and put it on your head here, you'd be putting little dents in it all the time. But there it is quite strong.

How many dimensions does gold go to and still remain usable by the beings on that level?

In this universe I have communicated with gold at the twelfth dimension. There's not much of it there, a few particles. [Chuckles.] I think someone took it there, because I'm not aware of any gold in the eleventh or tenth dimensions. Gold is in the ninth dimension and all the dimensions below it.

On this planet or someplace else?

In this area. I don't know what it's doing there; it is a mystery to us all. We don't know how it got there.

Maybe you should move over and let Zoosh tell you so that you have a mystery solved.

Good idea. Or perhaps we'll leave it as the unknown. We'll see.

What else would you like to say? It's all delightful

It's not necessary to say much, but in order to experience the best that gold has to offer, it is good to touch it. Gold doesn't have to be pure as long as there's some gold on the surface. Even that will be good. Touch it, then touch it to places where you'd like to have some inspiration: maybe your chakra points, whatever you wish. Touch it to your auric field. And always ask, as in a prayer, that you be granted the best wisdom available from Creator, from your guides, from your gods. And ask that if gold has any knowledge or wisdom for your spirit personality, it be passed on to you in those moments you are touching it.

Can you wait a minute before you go?

All right.

Can you feel through Robert? I want you to say hello to my piece of gold.

[Pause.] Extraordinary! I have never had such a feeling before. I have never known what it is like to feel a thumb and a finger. I have not been inside the human being, but I know of other particles who have.

Gold is put in teeth and is taken as a medicine.

Yes, I have heard of this. Sometimes it is even consumed accidentally, and perhaps it is from these . . .

Gold fillings.

Yes. And sometimes it is in the spring water that people drink. Do you know that gold in particle form in spring water can sometimes actually be good for you?

I've heard of colloidal minerals. Well, it's an honor to talk to you.

Oh, it is a great pleasure to speak with you. Thank you for letting me have the experience of touching a piece of gold with these fingers. Most interesting.

You have talked to me, but because thousands of people will read the book, you will have talked to thousands of beings.

What a wonderful, exciting thought! For now, good night.