Creator of Pure Feelings and Thoughts, One Circle of Creation

January 21, 1997

Well, all right, Zoosh speaking. What's on the agenda for tonight?

How about the being who gave the Creator that sense of impatience? Can that being talk?

You mean the being that was all of you?

Yes.

You mean from that time frame?

Yes.

But you're talking about the part of Creator . . .

The part of the Explorer Race that agitated the Creator.

I'll see. [Pause.] This is essentially the root of the Explorer Race.

The root, the total, the seed—I don't know how you would put it.

Maybe "the seed" is a good term.

Whatever wanted to do it—who or what.

We'll have to see if we can track that. You understand, it might not have a great deal of experience.

But it had a lust and a desire.

Seed of the Explorer Race

All right. We are the seed being to which you have referred. At one time we were simply a portion of the being you have come to know as your Creator. And when that was the case, we were that being also. But there was a moment—not by chance but apparently by plan—when we felt something impact us. We, of course, thought that it had impacted all of the being we were in. We did not realize that it had impacted only ourselves, as the portions of Creator who have become you and all beings here.

After that feeling of impact we were very excited, and we conveyed that excitement to the rest of the being that was ourselves at that time. But the rest of the being was not really interested. This energy was very much like a . . . how can we put it in the language of the day? . . . it was an energy of impetus. It seemed to tear us from our moorings and wanted us to hurtle out into space and find a place to create something—at that time we knew not what.

We felt ourselves trying to do that, when all of a sudden the being we were in [this Creator] seemed to have realized the urgency for us, and moved with us onto a journey that He has described in the previous session [see chapter 15 of Explorer Race: Particle Personalities]. We have had a long time to consider where that energy came from, and I think you will be able to hear from that source this night. Any questions?

No. If we can hear from that source, that would be wonderful.

Then I will see if I can stand aside and create a reverse trace to that being.

I am that which encompasses all your known, unknown and potential existence. From the beginning of my awareness I realized that it was my job to provide structure, organization, individuality, variety, philosophy, cause, purpose, effects, responsibility and many of the other things you have come to take as being part of the natural course of events. In the early days when I was in my infancy, I felt very enthusiastic about life. I felt, however, that I was primarily potential yet to be filled. If you were to have seen me then, I would have looked very transparent, though a thorough examination would have revealed a transparency that seemed to surround a vast space with no apparent objects filling that space.

In the beginning I felt this was me, and that is all. But gradually I began to want to see what I could do. I noticed that every time I had a thought there would be forms, sometimes simple shapes, other times vast shapes. I began to realize that my thoughts crystallize into substance, and they were not simply the pursuit of self-identification.

When I realized that these thoughts had the capacity to endure, I began to organize my thoughts in some form where each thought was pure unto its own self and could, as a result of its own experience, build upon what it started out its life as being. I then discovered that what I had assumed were thoughts were actually feelings. Feelings are, at the very core of their being, a foundation to thought.

When I discovered that, I went through every pure feeling I could find within myself. Then I began to add beliefs and ideas to those feelings, and I realized how complex a creation was possible. I decided it would be essential to have assistants not unlike apprentices, who would have the authority to create whole universes of their own and consult with other beings; to have some level of autonomy and still be able to consult with me if there were no other source of answers. I have noticed that these beings have come to be called creators, and I feel that is a good word for them.

After establishing that principle, I decided that the foundation for all creators must be pure feeling, that the primal feeling must be love and that everything must begin and end with love. In this way little harm could be done. Allowing for their potential to grow, I could not prevent all harm, but I could limit it with this essential programming.

So at the core of all creators is feeling. And when that feeling is attuned to pure love—and sometimes spontaneity, sometimes ideas, sometimes the sheer desire to define one's world—it is that energy, those feelings, that are the progenitor to these creators' apparitions or creations. I have often considered the pattern of what I have begun, and I do assume that it is a result of my having been placed here.

My Origin

I do remember my origin. Before I was here I existed in a place that was . . . I can only describe it as pure ecstatic feeling.

It is a place so fulfilling that one cares not to leave it, nor does one have any need, for pure ecstatic feeling feeds all needs. Yet one day this source of pure ecstatic feeling, of which I was a portion, separated like the way leaves separate from a tree at the end of their season, each one moving out in its own direction with the intention of establishing its own creation.

The one exception is that it was intended that whatever we created, whatever path all beings would take within that creation, they would work toward ecstatic feeling and would tap the source of ecstatic feeling to begin. This is why, when creation takes place even on the biological level, ecstatic feeling must be involved. If ecstatic feeling is not involved, then you are not in any creation I know of. This feeling ties you all together.

As a being, I feel at the moment that I am about three-quarters of the way through this creation. Beings within this creation will not, however, replace me. What will occur is that ultimately this creation is intended to reach a higher level than that which was my source. That is why I have allowed a certain amount of tension you might call creative impetus.

As far as I know, all other fellow beings like myself have done the same thing. The original reason for our departure from the source of pure ecstatic feeling was not to improve on it (for I am not aware of any improvement that is available), but rather to create the ultimate varieties of it so that there would be a progression that beings can take from pure ecstatic feeling through many things and eventually return to pure ecstatic feeling—and also to see if it is possible to create an even higher level of this ecstatic feeling.

If it is not possible, then so be it. If on the other hand it is possible, we will all come to know this in about (in terms of your experiential time) three and a half billion years. This might seem like a long time to you, but as you are immortals, you will all live to see it. That's when we will find out if there could be something more.

What is the extent of your creation? Is it the circle in the center of union?

It is all that you have heard of so far.

Do the circles of union belong to your creation, or is yours within one circle, this circle?

I encompass all that you know and have heard of as well as more that has not yet been discussed.

Okay, so you are beyond that buffer that sends sentient beings?

How I Accelerated the Process

Yes. It was my intention, when I sent that energy to the seed of yourselves, to accelerate the process. The process had settled down to be very gradual, so gradual that it was almost coming to a stop. This is why I needed to do something to stimulate the growth process. That's where you, the Explorer Race, come in.

This is an experiment, then, from the ultimate. This is the only time you've done this?

Yes. It is the only time it has been necessary. I do not think it will be necessary again. I have checked with the other beings like me, and all of them have at one time or another had to do something similar. It appears that I was the next to last being to have done this.

The attempt to move to a higher level of ecstatic feeling is what will happen when we achieve that tenfold expansion of consciousness?

This we do not know. We hope that that will happen, but it will not be immediate. It will radiate out, but it will take some time to radiate out to the entire creation that is within me. When that happens, then we will see.

So you're the one who sent the stream of inspiration past our Creator?

Yes. Although you as the seed being had all the energy that was necessary to create, you did not have all the tools that were necessary to function as a creator. It was necessary to send that which would support and sustain your creation within the Creator you resided in, but also to have enough to interest that Creator. So that was patterned in as well.

And the friends of the Creator were sort of inspired by you to be where they happened to meet the Creator.

They are portions of myself.

Whether they are aware of it or not.

I think on deep levels they are aware of it.

Zoosh as well.

Yes.

Youthful Enthusiasm Enabled You to Choose Suffering

What was the Explorer Race lacking? Maturity? What did the Creator have that the Explorer Race didn't have, so that it had to go through the Creator?

The seed being that you were then had youthful enthusiasm, but did not have the core responsibility that all creators have. You could have made a creation without wisdom. The creators necessarily have wisdom, because all creators are a combined total. They are all connected to other creators. You as a portion of a creator did not have that status or authority, so while you had some means to create, you might have gone too far with some creations in your youthful enthusiasm.

Why did we need that youthful enthusiasm—in order to put up with the suffering, the experiment, the whole game?

Yes, because no being would consciously choose suffering unless they were filled with youthful enthusiasm, which has within it a sense of its own immortality, or unless they were serving some greater cause that allowed it to be somewhat self-sacrificial to serve the higher purpose. You were filled with that. Even today one sees that—courage and self-sacrifice for the betterment of all or even for some.

After we take over this creation and run it, will we have gained the maturity and wisdom to do our own creation?

Becoming Responsible by Managing Creation

Yes. It is intended that you have the responsibility that will come as a result of managing (if I might use that word) this creation, because only when you feel this entire creation as yourself will you understand all the subtleties of what you have contributed to. Yes, Earth is shielded largely from influencing other planets that cannot tolerate such extreme energy, but it is not a complete and total shield. Some of this energy is intended to escape, but with it goes a degree of minor discomfort. This has grossly affected many beings and many civilizations, some of whom you will not really meet as individuals but will come to know when you reconnect as your total being. You will need to purify those beings as well, so there will be much to do. Some things will have to be uncreated. Other things will have to be re-created. Still more things will have to be created entirely anew.

If you create creators and they all have this wisdom and responsibility, what did you do to the seed part of us that made us different?

Your Ignorance and Discovery Enabled by My Shielding

It was necessary to treat your system of being different. I had to encapsulate even your own Creator somewhat, so that your Creator could and would operate on faith but not necessarily have the whole picture. It was also necessary to encapsulate you even while you were within your Creator so that you could experiment with ignorance and discovery, which in my experience are the tools of quantum expansion. Thus it was necessary to apply a degree of shielding to both your Creator and you within your Creator. When you recombine as your total self, you will not experience that shielding. That's how you will know where to go, what to do, who to help, who to leave alone.

But there's almost a sense that our growth was stunted or that something was missing—or is it all explained by this shielding?

Your growth has been purposely controlled so that you could benefit from your own creation. If you and your Creator were allowed to know all, you would not have been able to apply ignorance and discovery. If you had known all, you would have known how ignorance and discovery would affect the populations in your immediate sphere of influence as well as populations well beyond. If you had known that there would be suffering, you would never have been able to institute that which could lead to suffering.

After the Quantum Leap, Chaos Elsewhere

It was therefore necessary to install blinders upon you, as it were, so that you could make the choice, give the gift, live the gift and in time restructure the gift. For when that quantum leap of ten times consciousness takes place, there will be much to do afterward. Many beings will not have any idea what has happened. The farther reaches of the universe are not involved in this experiment at all. In one moment they will be conscious to the degree they are, and in the next moment they will suddenly have ten times that consciousness. So there will be some chaos and confusion, and you will need to be almost everywhere at once.

This will happen in all of the creations within this circle of creation, the other universes?

Yes. And as it affects other universes, you will need to send expeditionary portions of yourself there, or you will have to support the creators in those universes as they assist their own beings. You will be busy for a time. [Chuckles.]

You got this theory of ignorance and discovery from your peers? That was the technique they used in their creations?

No, we did not share.

Then you invented it?

I decided to take a chance with it. It wasn't so much an invention as an application that required taking a chance. When I was considering taking a chance with it, I initially considered doing it myself. But I knew that I would not be able to do it as thoroughly as other beings might do, because I would know all the effects it would have.

You couldn't be ignorant.

Answering the Call for Volunteers

No. But if some beings were chosen to partake of this creation, they could (if their souls agreed) have this experience themselves for a time. So I basically put out a call for volunteers. I was very surprised at how many beings volunteered. There were volunteers from all over. I was quite stunned. I had to go through a weeding-out process. My primary tool for this process was who would stay with it the longest, who would be willing to exist in this process for billions of billions of years in experiential time.

Ultimately, since you were living in a voidlike place within your Creator, the idea of being involved [chuckles] in a great mass of creation excited you, and that is how I made my choice. I recognized that your excitement could create some confusion at some point; nevertheless, I felt that was a reasonable risk.

You Existed Before I Did, in Pure Liquidity

So did we have a history before this? Was there a conscious history of who we were before that quickening inside the Creator?

Yes. You had existed before my existence. Understand that my existence began, from my perception, from that moment of separation from complete Ecstasy; before that I was a portion of something else. When I was involved in creating creators and conditions for creations, I had to call various feelings from various places and I had to create the purest feelings to function as the foundation for creators, yes? Youthful enthusiasm is a feeling, and when I was focusing on that I could hear you calling as a seed race, asking if you could come and accept the mantle of youthful enthusiasm, which appealed to you. I said yes, of course.

So you came from a far-off place. I believe it is a place that consists almost entirely of liquid—liquid elements, for it is not exactly water, though water exists there. It is a place of pure liquidity. You came in that form and I told you that you could keep that in creation or in your creative ability, but you might also have to become light. Since light flows, you decided you could accept that. You could not accept any existence that did not at the very least flow. Eventually you will resume pure liquidity, but that will be long after your responsibilities here.

Is the place where we were within the source from which you came?

It was not in pure Ecstasy. It is a different place, perhaps a place worthy of hearing from next time.

(You're doing something—I'm shaking all over. There's something happening here.) So we came forth and we moved into the Creator while He was in the Void?

Yes.

We went through the centrifuge? How did that work?

No, you were sent to where this Creator was, who came to be your own. This Creator had love within the core of Its being, of course, but It also had tremendous patience—an obvious place for youthful enthusiasm.

So it's a wonderful drama, far beyond anything that we have caused. It was all sort of staged, yet you didn't know the outcome.

Your Eventual Ability to Uncreate; Your Root of Youthful Enthusiasm

No. The best plans, in my experience, do have the outcome as a mystery. This way, when you are able to uncreate, you can bring things together without any real sense of exactly what will happen, though you will have a vague sense. You will see what happens, and if it isn't right, you have the responsibility and the ability to uncreate. When one has achieved quantum mastery, uncreation is achievable. I have done this and a little bit more.

What would you call us—a race, a being? How would you describe what we are in totality?

You are essentially a feeling. You are your full enthusiasm, and no matter how old you are as an individual, you all have that within you, though sometimes you forget. Even when you are very old as a physical being, it is exactly youthful enthusiasm that allows you to feel the sense of adventure that one often feels in what is called senility—to leap out of the body in your spirit-body form and dash around to discover there is more yet to be had. It is exactly your youthful enthusiasm that makes the perpetuation of life such a pleasure.

There is no other feeling like us in any of the other creations within your creation?

There is no other race of beings that has youthful enthusiasm at its core, though there are certainly other races of beings that are utilizing it. After all, you too utilize other feelings: You have joy, love, excitement, happiness—and those and other feelings might be the root of other races. So although you might utilize other emotions and thoughts, your root is youthful enthusiasm, and there are no other beings or races that have that as a root, though there are several that have similar feelings—spontaneity being an example.

Have we ever heard of you? Do you have an identity? Has there ever been a whisper of who or what you are in our religion or mythology?

I don't think so, because if I were well-known, it would cause you all to feel separated more from the All. Therefore I have not gone out of my way [chuckles] to make my presence known.

But now as you evolve toward greater consciousness, you can begin to hear about beings such as myself without being in the least bit intimidated.

What can we call you? What would you choose to be known by?

I do not use a name or a sound or color, because I am all of those and more, so what can I say? I will let you name me, eh? But do not name me Spot or anything like that.

[Laughs.] Let's talk about you. The little bit that we got before was that there was a circle of union [see chapter 12 in Explorer Race: Particle Personalities] around everything that we knew of in creation, that there were several unions, and then we got to the golden light [see chapter 13 in Particle Personalities] that fed this creation. I gather that's an agent of yours?

Yes.

Then we heard of the one who made shapes, then the buffer [see chapter 7 in Particle Personalities] where the personalities were nurtured.

My Internal Structure

Yes. There is a great deal of structure within me, and this is very important. We cannot have creations feeding back into places where they were before they became what they are. There is a large number of safety mechanisms to keep you moving in your proper direction.

Can you help us understand what else is in your creation? Is this the only circle of union in your creation that has creations in it, or are there many?

There are other creations that have union. Generally speaking, that which exists in some form of mass between creations is often union. Not always, but often, as it is a material that supports and sustains while acting as an insulator.

Shiva is connected to you in some way because he was your architect for the orbs, right?

This is an assistant.

What is beyond the buffer? The personalities come from you, but can you describe anything beyond that?

Beyond union?

Beyond the buffer zone. We know that the personalities are nurtured there and that the being who makes dense, compressed light uses it, but we don't know what's beyond that.

What is beyond that is primarily what I call raw feelings, meaning a vast array of feelings, a few of which could be loosely termed tinctures of thoughts (tinctures meaning a form of pure thought), but in condensed streams—the raw material that this being you have referred to utilizes. This raw material might be loosely referred to as the core of my being.

Which flows out, but is somehow constantly replenished from your source?

Yes, because pure Ecstasy has within it all thought and feeling that sustains and nurtures life. It does not, however, have within it criticism, discomfort, any of that. I had to call on something else to . . .

Discomfort: Culling It from a Creator's Rejects

I was going to ask you that, because a particle of union said it had everything except discomfort.

Yes, I had to actually dredge that up [chuckles] from someplace else. When I sent you to your Creator, you did not have it yet. When I sent the energy burst that got you going, I included a very small amount of the energy of stress. I'm calling it stress in the mechanical sense, which means, perhaps more precisely, resistance, which is at the source of all discomfort. It is built in this way because it is your job to create, refine and largely utilize discernment in its purified form. You cannot fulfill that end without having some challenge to work with, and this small amount of resistance has compounded itself into all of the discomforts you feel.

And where did you get it?

I culled it from a being who was sent out from another level of creation. This was not a being so much as a collection of odds and ends that didn't work in that particular creation. It was rejected by one of the other beings like myself who, noticing these bits that were unresolved, gathered up all that was unresolved from its creation and expelled it. When it was moving toward the auric field of Ecstasy, where it would have been transformed into pure loving energy, I sampled a small amount of it and let it be on its way. I took a very small amount, but I must admit that I did not realize its capacity for self-regeneration. When I realized this fully, it was a little too late. Being a quantum master and a little more, I have resolved all that is my responsibility, and I will allow you to resolve all that is yours.

Pure Ecstasy, My Source; Other Levels

I sort of lost the picture there. You said you separated as a leaf would separate, so did pure Ecstasy separate into several beings like you?

No, the core of pure Ecstasy remains, but other beings, parts of pure Ecstasy like myself, separated at the same time and went to other places away from pure Ecstasy, but not so far that we cannot feel its radiations.

How many? Two, or millions, billions, hundreds?

Oh, I think there are only 91.

Ninety-one. And they are all doing the same thing you are, creating creators?

I have not really checked. We do not check on each other. I think most of them are involved in some level of creationism.

And the source of pure Ecstasy is one of many sources? There are others like him?

You would have to ask that being.

All right, if that's possible.

Yes, perhaps another night.

What brings you joy? Watching your creations unfold?

Joy is my natural state of being, but what brings me a special joy is watching the level of cherishment that parents have for children. This is my favorite part. In most places children are cherished like treasures. Even on your own planet this is often the case, though not always, because of your particular challenges. But I'd say that what gives me the greatest joy is that cherishment.

You mentioned levels of creation. Are there levels above and beyond you that you aspire to?

Aspire, no. I cannot say that aspiration is a personally experienced emotion within me. I am reasonably happy and fulfilled doing what I am doing.

Are there levels above you?

Are there other levels such as you experience dimensions? I do not think so. I think that at this place where we are, dimensions are created from this point on. I am not aware of other variations of this existence in some other expression.

Like the fellow who had anticipation but not curiosity, they're down the line, right? [Laughs.] They're down the line from you, not upline?

Yes.

The Future of My Creations, How I Interact with Them

Is there a cycle? Will you at some point learn everything there is to know and shut this down to do something else? How does your cycle play out at your level?

I believe that at some point I will allow these creations within me to be entirely autonomous, at which time I will simply take a little nap.

Then what?

I'll decide when I wake up.

Oh, all right. [Laughs.] But there are other possibilities, other adventures even at your level?

Possibly I might find someone to fill in for me, but I don't think it's intended. I believe it is intended that you all become autonomous in some way at some point. After all, what is the point of creating creators if they do not eventually have autonomy?

How do they not have autonomy now?

Well, they are within me; that's where they are. They do not simply leave me and go out to create a creation elsewhere. Their primary restriction is that they must stay within myself.

How do you interact with them? You give them inspiration, you send them love, you send them energy, you send them light?

I send them, generally speaking, what they need. If they need to learn something, then I let them find it. Anything that anyone needs to learn can be found and experienced within myself, or you would not need to learn it—for all needs shall be fulfilled.

How would you make creators autonomous, by somehow allowing them to move beyond what you are?

Yes. I would simply inform them all that should any of them desire to move beyond my boundaries, they would be welcome to do so.

What are your boundaries like?

[Chuckles.] It's hard to put that in your numbers. The closest I can give you would be . . .

I don't mean numbers; just describe what happens. Do you fall off an edge? Is there a barrier? Is there more light?

If you were to approach it (you'd have to be a creator to do so), you would simply lose interest in going any farther. You would lose the impetus to go farther.

How would you change that when someone desires to go farther?

I simply would not reduce the energy flow to creators.

Oh, that's what you do?

Yes. I reduce the energy flow so that they would choose to stay within me at this time. I would eliminate that clause [chuckles].

If they were to move, is there a space there, or would they run into one of the other 91 beings like you or whatever is out there?

There is infinite space. The chances of their running into another one of the 91 beings is very unlikely, though it is possible. If they were to approach another one of the beings, it would say, "Not here; this space is taken." [Chuckles.]

You said, "I believe it's intended that you all become autonomous." You didn't say, "I intend that you all should be autonomous." Where does this intention come from?

It comes from Ecstasy. Ecstasy originally released myself and the others with an allowance for us to be autonomous, so I simply extrapolate that that is an intention.

My Perception of Some Other Beings

Are there other beings we missed who are mechanics in making this creation work? Are there other beings there who have responsibilities or functions to make this work?

It is possible, yes, that there are other beings. Some of them might not be too practical to communicate with, such as pure tone, for instance, or pure emotion or even pure thought. A pure thought would be focused in one thought and anything you asked it would be answered within the parameters of that thought. I believe the beings you have spoken with so far are the ones who are most easily assimilated into your thought patterns.

I see. What about the friends of the Creator and Zoosh? They had histories before. What is your version? What is your perception of them?

Zoosh, as a being, as a persona, has, in its root (the progenitor of Zoosh and its progenitor) existed somewhat outside of my being, but Zoosh itself did not exist as a personality until it came to be within myself. Much the same can be said for the other beings, with the exception of the Master of Discomfort, who is distantly related to that discomfort energy that I sampled slightly to send with you.

Coming into Me from Beyond Me

So, like the Explorer Race, then, the friends of the Creator came from beyond your creation, from someplace else?

Their precursors did, that which preceded them, but the personalities they now have represented to you were all generated within this mass creation.

Can you help me understand the concept of the progenitors and of moving from someplace else to within you?

Yes. An example, if you were to experience it physically, would be . . . have you ever been around a child who is young enough to directly reflect the personality and opinions of its parents? It would be like that. The Zoosh personality is the child of the progenitor of Zoosh and its progenitor.

Who were created someplace else?

Yes.

Were Zoosh and the other friends of the Creator all created in a certain place, or did they come from diverse places?

I believe from diverse places.

From the other 91 creators?

No.

Ah, so there's someplace else where beings are created?

There are, to my understanding, infinite places of creation. It is a very large loop.

Well, this is the Beyond book. We're going to check it out, right?

That's right.

You are stimulating something in me, because my body is shaking and I'm finding it hard to breathe. What are we stimulating, memory?

Well, it is not my intention to give you discomfort . . .

No, no, it's wonderful!

Perhaps we'll see what happens.

My Appearance

All right. Do you have shape? Are you circular or spherical?

I initially said that I was transparent. I am translucent, because of all that is within me. If you were to see me, I would look . . . let's see if I can draw it. [Draws.] I will indicate, for the sake of some clarity, a gap at the bottom. See this as a circular thing. There are lines on the other side too, but I am showing you roughly a side view.

The gap is my allowance for all that is within me to have its own cycle of growth, so that I alone do not influence you. There is a certain amount of protection, so that what is appropriate to stay within stays there and what is inappropriate to come in stays without. But if there is something that needs to come in that I have not allowed for due to your own evolutionary growth, I have allowed for that.

Is that where the beings from outside your creation come in? Like the Explorer Race and the friends of the Creator?

No, they would come in more from the top. You're seeing it in its expanded form now. At some point it will expand even more. When you have the ten times consciousness it will expand quite a bit. But picture the shapes; simply picture the gap at the bottom getting larger and everything swinging up from there.

Do all 91 of your peers look like this?

Variations of that, yes.

With your responsibility to this creation, can you go out and look around in other places? Do you have any interest in doing that?

I cannot go per se.

But can you see clairvoyantly or something?

I am able to do so, but I limit that within myself so that I do not

. . . well, my whole focus is purity, refinement—we start with the purest source of whatever feeling or thought, and it continues to be refined either by its own experience or through some process of my own. So I am disinclined to stimulate myself too much with other people's creations.

My Connection to the Centers of Pure Feeling; How I See My Job

Beyond our Orb we have beings described as centers of pure feeling, which we draw on. Do you have some sort of connections to each of those; do you feed those?

I initially fed them with the pure feeling and gave them the ability to reproduce that pure feeling as they need to so it can create itself. The advantage of keeping those feelings pure is that it can easily re-create itself, yet not be easily affected by other feelings or thoughts. So purity is guaranteed, which means that the opening exists where the feelings exit, but there is no longer an entrance. There was an opening for entrance when I initiated these feelings, but now that opening has been closed and the feelings reproduce themselves.

Say more about the purity of feeling and thought.

It is not my intention to disrupt the evolution of beings, even if I have been largely involved in their creation. It is my intention to provide the clearest sources by which all creators and ultimately all beings can tap into and choose for themselves how to combine things. As I see it, my job is to create the essences, the foundational elements by which beings can then go to the market, if you would, and mix and match as they will.

Is that something that you contemplated, or when you individualized was it just there?

Because I had come from pure Ecstasy, which is the combination of all benevolent feelings, I felt strongly that feelings must be available in their pure source. It is my hope that ultimately all that is created within me will regenerate pure Ecstasy on its own as a primary feeling, honoring its source. But I decided from the very beginning that I would not underlay any being with that desire. I would simply see if it would come about in the natural course of events, allowing for where I came from and who I am. It is as if I am breaking myself down into my component parts,

Connections with My Source

Do you communicate with your source? It's feeding you, in a sense.

Not "in a sense"; it does feed me.

Is there any sort of father-son communication?

No, it is more like food.

Do you have emotional or mental interactions with your source?

Not mental. I had to create a lot of mental from scratch, because mental was not used very much because it always slows things down. But I could see it that would be useful within the creations within myself. One must find some means by which to separate the dimensions. And dimensions, if expressed by any creator, use a form of mental frequency to create the barriers that separate dimensions. So I do not think with my source; my source would consider that too slow. But there is a shared mutual love; I feel cherished by my source, and I cherish my source.

There's no interchange of information?

Information is thought.

It's a love exchange, right?

Pure feeling, yes. Pure feeling, not thought.

A feeling of oneness?

Pure love is a feeling of oneness, amongst other things.

Consultants in Your and My Creation

When we first started the book series, we had only our Creator here in our creation. Then what we call outside consultants came in and created the dimensions and did a lot of the engineering to make the creation work. Those beings are all your creation, right?

Yes, as they express themselves here, yes.

When you created your creation, did it happen spontaneously, or did you have the benefit of outside consultants?

It didn't spontaneously happen; it happened with consideration. And no, I did not have outside consultants. That is, it is pure Ecstasy's intention that portions of itself—myself and the 91—be relatively autonomous. The only exception is that pure Ecstasy feeds us.

Is your source in turn fed by something, or is it creating what it sustains you with?

It might very well be fed by something, but I do not think it is fed by its own. I believe it is creating pure ecstasy, but it is possibly being fed by something. You will have to ask it.

I've run out. What would you like to tell us?

Your Lineage

I will say this: You all come from a benevolent lineage: pure liquidity and all of the subtle influences of myself and beings within me. Your parents are truly pure Liquidity and total Ecstasy. I believe in your capacity to find your own path to rejoin this ultimate sense of home. I know that when you take over this creation you will by your very nature transform many planets into planets of liquid and joy that are now stark and barren, waiting for life. It is your nature to do so, and I will enjoy observing you in action.

That's why we needed a water planet, right?

Yes. Good night.

Thank you very, very much.

All right [sighs], Zoosh speaking.

Awesome, man, awesome! It took you longer to get back this time than it ever has, I think.

You have me on the clock, eh?

[Laughs.] No, you just look different. How was it different?

For me? You mean, was it good for me? [Everyone laughs.] I enjoyed hearing this being communicate in such a fashion because my normal communications with this being do not involve any level of the mental. So that was a pleasure.

So he had to focus in a different way to talk to us.

Yes.

Why is my body shaking? It feels like it's going to break the edges of the skin; something's going on.

Well, I am hopeful that it is simply a form of initiation.

Well, you choose the next one. You're doing great.

All right. We could either hear from the pure Ecstasy or the pure Liquidity.

Pure Ecstasy first.

All right, we'll do pure Ecstasy and then . . .

. . . learn more about his idea before we go to our source.

All right
